

Coaching toolkit use and sharing

This toolkit is published by Pole Mountain Learning. These additional permissions supplement the applicable TPT license and do not reduce rights granted by TPT.

One licensed individual

Each purchased license is assigned to one coach, mentor, instructional facilitator or other individual educator. It is not a school or district license. Assigning the purchase to its intended recipient is permitted as provided by TPT. Other independent users need their own licenses.

Personal coaching and teacher sessions

Use, print and edit the tools in your own coaching or mentoring with teachers you personally support, including at multiple schools. This expressly includes your salaried or contracted coaching work.

Working forms and agreed summaries

Provide individual blank and completed working forms to those teachers for use in your work together. Share completed records with the relevant teacher and authorized school staff only for the agreed purpose and under local privacy and reporting requirements.

Team sessions you facilitate

Project guide excerpts and examples, and provide relevant printed or secure digital handouts, in teacher team or PLC sessions you personally facilitate. Participants may retain those handouts for the agreed follow-up. This permission does not grant them independent use of the complete toolkit or the right to facilitate coaching with it.

Student-facing pages

Teachers you personally support may print, adapt and securely deliver the student-facing pages F05, Q05 and CF05 to their own students, including after the coaching cycle ends. They may not distribute blank pages to other educators. This continuing permission applies to these student pages, not the complete toolkit.

Sharing limits and professional use

Independent users and additional licenses

Do not give another coach, mentor or facilitator the toolkit for independent practice. Each independent user needs a license. TPT offers additional-license purchasing; any discount is the amount shown on the listing.

Secure access and attribution

Keep access limited to the recipients and uses permitted on page 1. Do not post the complete toolkit on a shared school or district drive, website, learning platform or public link for other users. Preserve Pole Mountain Learning attribution on shared or adapted pages.

Redistribution and training packages

Do not resell the files, redistribute the complete toolkit, remove its attribution or include its content in another product. Receiving a working form or session handout does not permit further distribution. Paid training for other coaches or facilitators, or a district training package for independent use, requires separate written permission from Pole Mountain Learning. Your own paid coaching and facilitated teacher sessions described on page 1 are permitted.

Professional judgment and local requirements

All case names, student work, dates and results are fictional. These tools support professional learning and coaching; they are not a teacher evaluation instrument. Follow local privacy, storage, reporting and access requirements. The examples show how to inspect evidence; they do not establish effectiveness or promise particular results.
